Informational Report on Approved and Terminated Programs FY 2006- 2007

Background

This report contains information on the number of new programs approved, existing programs modified, and existing programs terminated by the Commission during FY 2006-2007. The term “program as used here also includes concentrations/options and centers. Twenty-three new programs were added, six were modified, and 22 were terminated during this year.

The listing of programs approved and terminated is found in Attachments 1 and 2. The terminations are presented by institution. This information is presented to members of the Committee for information only to provide an overview of program approval activity during the past year.

Approval of New Programs, 2006-2007

Program development occurred primarily at the undergraduate level. There were ten programs developed at the baccalaureate level and six at the associate’s degree level. There were only three new master’s degree programs developed. During this year, there were not any doctoral level programs approved. Two of the four new centers were at research institutions, Clemson and USC-Columbia. The other two centers were at teaching institutions, College of Charleston and Lander. Under current CHE Guidelines, only centers intending to request state funding require CHE approval.

Of the 23 new programs approved in FY 2006-2007, 15 general areas of curricular areas of growth can be identified:

Modifications of Programs, 2006-2007

- two in modern languages;
- two in teacher education;
- one in liberal studies/humanities; and
- one in social work.

There were four programs modified at the undergraduate level. There was one program modified at the graduate level and one modified at the doctorate level. One of the modifications was developed to be offered off-site and the other five modifications added new options in two programs.

Terminations of Programs, 2006-2007

The Citadel closed ten programs or concentrations, seven of which were in teacher education or counseling; and three of which were in foreign languages, although these will be replaced by concentrations within a program leading to a baccalaureate degree in modern languages. Lander and USC-Upstate each closed two programs. S.C. State University closed one program, and the Medical University of South Carolina and Clemson closed a joint program. USC-Columbia deleted an option and a concentration.

Of the 22 existing programs, concentrations, and options terminated in FY 2006-07, six general curricular areas can be identified:

Comparison of Newly Approved Programs with Terminated Programs

In the past year, the total of new program approvals exceeded deletions by one. Teacher education was the category in which most additions and deletions occurred. Four-year institutions provided the overwhelming number of both new programs and deletions.
